Т Англійська для медіа-грамотності. Керівництво до масового відкритого он-лайн курсу. Книга для фасилітатора: Навчальний посібник. – Чернігів, 2019. – 100 с.

Посібник є керівництвом до масового відкритого он-лайн курсу "English for Media Literacy", розробленого Університетом Пенсильваніі (США) та розміщеного на навчальній платформі Coursera. Мета посібника – допомогти тим, хто проходить курс, успішно впоратися з усіма завданнями, а також отримати навички медіа-грамотності та вдосконалити свою англійську.

Посібник складається з двох частин: книги для студента та книги для фасилітатора курсу. Книга для студента містить покрокову інструкцію реєстрації на навчальній платформі та проходження он-лайн курсу, навчально-методичні матеріали до кожного з п'яти модулів, розробки додаткових занять з вебсайту NewseumEd.org для організації проектної роботи студентів. Книга для фасилітатора складається з рекомендацій щодо організації змішаного навчання та відповідей до більшості завдань. Посібник адресується студентам і викладачам англійської мови, а також широкому колу бажаючих краще орієнтуватись у світі медіа.

A LETTER FROM THE AUTHOR

The "English for Media Literacy" Project was implemented by the Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs and the Public Affairs Section of the Embassy of the United States in Kyiv in collaboration with educational online platform Coursera. In Ukraine the project was administered by the public organisation Ukrainian Center for Civic Initiatives "Svitlo".

From January to June, 2018 program participants had an opportunity to improve their English skills while learning more about the role mass media plays in modern society. The program was designed to inform audiences about media literacy and how to know more about modern media.

30 English language professionals from 20 Ukrainian towns and cities were selected to take part in the project and to receive special training as course facilitators. They held dissemination seminars and workshops for multiple audiences, including youth, educators, community leaders, and news professionals in their regions. They also facilitated the work of MOOC Camps and helped the course participants share expertise and work together to develop their media literacy strategies. In total, 120 group trainings were held for nearly 700 participants all over Ukraine and 500 people were awarded "English for Media Literacy" Certificates for successful course completion from Coursera, Pennsylvana University and RELO of US Embassy in Kyiv.

I was lucky to be selected as a course facilitator in Chernihiv region and to supervise the work of MOOC Camp in Taras Shevchenko National University "Chernihiv Collegium". Together with 15 students of Natural and Mathematical Faculty we had 6 weeks of fruitful collaboration, learning from each other, unexpected insights and heated debates. The course gave the participants a great opportunity to develop a broader understanding of media and its role in our lives as well as the language skills needed to analyze what you read and watch.

Successful launch of the project led to high interest to media literacy education among the students and faculty members which soon entailed changes in specialty curriculum. A new academic course "English for Media Literacy" was introduced into teaching practice at Natural and Mathematical Faculty of NUChC at the beginning of the fall semester, 2018. It was provided for the students of the 4th year of study majoring in Computer Science and IT. The course includes 20 hours of lectures and 20 hours of practical classes which are to be held twice a week for half a year. At the end of the course the students are supposed to be assessed in oral or written form and receive their Coursera certificate. The mark for the course completion is an official one and is to be registered in the Bachelor's Certificate after graduation.

Now we move on. As the course participants are supposed to work with online resources mostly at home, in class time they should be involved in challenging tasks and interesting activities on media literacy together with their fellow learners. This "English for Media Literacy" Class Set will help the facilitator to manage group discussion and bring variety to learning and exploring. It consists of a Student's and Facilitator's Books. Facilitator's guide will give you helpful tips how to start a course and engage all the participants. It contains the Keys Section and some additional recourses. Teacher-controlled exercises, pair and small-group work activities in Student's book involve role plays, problem solving tasks and projects. Besides, this Classroom Set can save your time and efforts in case of no Internet access or poor technical support.

This Class Set production would be impossible without US Embassy funding and support. I would like to express my sincere gratitude to the project authors and consultants John Silver, Joey Fordyce, David Gracon and Anton Plaksun, whose unfailing commitment and expertise made this program unforgetful experience for me and other MOOC facilitators. I am most thankful indeed to Joey and Gracon for all course materials and presentations which they kindly allowed us to use in our work.

I believe that the course will become a valuable educational experience and reveal great opportunities of life-long learning for our students.

Top 5 Plus: A Personalized Facilitator Guide

Joey Fordyce English Language Fellow 2016-2018

Dear Facilitators!

You are receiving this guide and reading this letter because you have decided to invest in the future of others. So first, thank you for your dedication and willingness to help others. Second, congratulations... being a MOOC camp facilitator should be fun and rewarding for you, too!

"Top 5 Plus" is intended to guide you towards successfully facilitating a MOOC camp. Starting with an overview of facilitator skills, it moves through helpful tips and phrases to assist you as a facilitator. Each page lists 5 tips or phrases to get you started, but as each person has his/her own style, personality and experiences, there is room for you to personalize this book with your own ideas. Each page also includes five quotes on the topic to inspire you in the personalization of this guide. So, feel free to add your own thoughts as you progress through your experience as a facilitator.

TOP 5+ DISCUSSION TIPS

Keeping a discussion on track and progressing is an integral part of a facilitator's job. Don't be afraid of disagreement though; just make sure each participant is respectful of others' opinions.

- 1. Make sure questions are open-ended and relevant to the topic.
- 2. Divide large groups into smaller discussion groups (2-5 people)
- 3. Offer feedback and praise to contributing participants.
- 4. Allow participants time to think about the question or issue.
- 5. Ask only one question at a time.

- 7. What is the future of media? C

INTERVIEW WITH WILLIAM COWEN (CORRECT VERSION)

1. How much time does an average person interact with media?

Well, because of the universality of media, it's almost hard to judge what an average person is and how many hours they interact with media. This could be anywhere from a few hours a day collectively, all the way up to every single waking moment. Because, as you know, some people wake up with smartphones, and go to bed and they have their smartphone right next to them. So it is affected by people's level of interest in the media, what topics that they're caring about at the time. But also it's affected by things like geography and access. How much readily available media is there to people? So it all depends, everything from a few hours, all the way up to every single moment. Some studies have shown that children in particular, interact with media and some type of medium up to ten hours of their day. So it depends on where you are, what you're interested in, and how much access you have.

2. Are there certain types of people that see media messages more often?

Absolutely. People see media, whether they like it or not. People see media and don't realize that they're being affected by it. 24/7 we are bombarded by messages from various sources, different types of media. Radio, television, film, Internet access, and depending on your level of interest, shows how much you connect with a particular media outlet. If you think about the concept of cognitive dissonance where people tend to stay away from information that the don't find that aligns with their attitudes. There's a flip side to that, so if people are interested in a particular topic, they frequent those media that feature those topics more often. People could also be limited to media by their jobs. So if they're in a job situation where they have to disconnect from access for hours at a time, like a doctor or somebody like that. Then they're disconnected from that particular world and have a tendency to reconnect as soon as they possibly can. So it depends again on access and the people's jobs, and their functions, and their level of interest.

3. What impact do media have on people's everyday lives?

Well, from a day to day basis, the media is there to help people feel that they're a bigger part of their community. Their country, their world. And it helps them make decisions that are potentially better ones in their lives. So they'll seek out information, again, that they feel that they can relate to in an effort to be part of this bigger system.

4. What are the positive effects of interacting with the media?

One of the main positive effects of interacting with the media is the ability to educated and education is power. It's power to be informed. It's power to make better decisions in your life and be a much bigger part of the community. It's also a way to be connected to be people that you would not necessarily know from all over the world. So the universality of media is the most ultimate expression of being a part of a global community.

5. What are the negative effects of the media on us?

One of the things that everyone interacting with the media should consider is the quality of the particular media outlet. Because of technology, there's an easy way for anybody that would like to, to put up messages online, so to speak. So remember, look at quality media outlets as opposed to somebody that may be just sharing an opinion. They may have the same opinion as you but it doesn't mean they're following any kind of journalistic integrity or journalistic style. There's also an issue of oversaturation of messaging. It'll be interesting to find out many, many years down the road as the media continues to grow. Whereas humans we get to a certain point where we start to shut down messages by sheer volume. So misinformation, oversaturation of messaging, and things along those lines are what are the negative qualities of the media.

6. How have media changed over time?

Well, there are things that have not changed about the media over time, and things that have changed. So let's look at what's been constant the whole time. The purpose and the content of media messages has not changed. If you go way back in history and look at how the Greeks promoted the Olympics. You look at the invention of the printing press, where people could see words on a paper for the very first time in a book form or even in a daily newspaper form. Accompanied by the town crier, someone whose job was, literally, to stand on a street corner and ring a bell and scream messaging out. These are all communication channels. At their core, the media wants to inform. They want to educate, they also want to persuade. That has not changed over many thousands of years. What has changed is the delivery mechanism. It's gotten quicker, it's gotten faster, and it's gotten instantaneous. So we're going to see a continued evolution of these delivery mechanisms, but the intent of the media has always been the same.

7. What is the future of media?

The media obviously has a really exciting future. There's going to be an increase in technology. And more exciting, is the increase in technology around the world. So people that did not have access to certain media, will have more access to media as the years go on. This is just going to increase our connectivity from a global basis and allow people to essentially meet each other, interact, that ever would. With this technology will come message saturation as well. So consumers of media are going to have to make a more direct choice about what media they're interested and what not. And one thing that no matter where you are around the world, and what kind of media that you encounter and engage. You need to know to make sure your own mind and your own attitudes and your own frame of reference on the world. And use the media as a tool for information and not a basis to make decisions specifically on somebody else's thoughts. Use your own mind and have it better your own world and your own life.

Video "Language Focus: Previewing Texts"

Task 1

Previewing the text is a skill which enables you to quickly learn what the text is about and improve your understanding.

Task 2

- 1. Look at the title
- 2. Pay attention to pictures and captions
- 3. Look through the subheadings
- 4. Read the first paragraph

Task 3

A title is a name of a book, article, film, painting or a piece of music.

Captions are the words below a picture that explain it.

A subheading is a small title introducing different sections of the text.

A paragraph is a short part of a text, consisting of at least one sentence, describing a single event or idea and beginning on a new line.

Task 4

Captions: Did you know that there's a World Emoji Day? Well, there is ... and it's on July 17!

Title: World Emoji Day

First Paragraph: Emoji is the fastest growing language in history. Five billion emojis are sent every day, just on Facebook Messenger. They're appearing in some surprising places too. One court judge in England in 2015 used a smiley face emoji in a document to make it easy to explain the court's decision to children. It's not surprising that there's a day to celebrate emojis, but what do you know about its organisers, the website Emojipedia?

- 4. Філіпінці отримали ту нагороду. The Philippines won that award. Filipinos won that distinction.
- 5. Людей наводнюють інформацією. People are flooded with messages. People are bombarded with messages.

Task 4

Why media literacy is important?

- 1. You need two skills to be engaged citizens of a democracy: critical thinking and self-expression. Media literacy instills both.
- 2. You are exposed to more media messages in one day than previous generations were exposed to in a year. Media literacy teaches you the skills to navigate safely through these messages.
- 3. Media exerts a significant impact on the way we understand, interpret and act. Media literacy helps you understand outside influences and empowers you to make better decisions.
- 4. The world is increasingly influenced by visual images. Learning how to "read" through layers of image-based communication is just as necessary as learning to analyze text-based communication.
- 5. Media literacy helps you understand where information comes from, whose interests may be being served and how to find alternative views.

Video "Features of a Print Advertisement"

Task 1

A slogan is a short phrase that people will remember.

A logo is a symbol or design that a company uses to show that a product was created by them.

Features are characteristics or specific parts of something.

Task 3

Ask the students to brainstorm famous advertising slogans. You'll almost certainly get Nike's 'Just Do It', Adidas' 'Impossible is Nothing', perhaps some from car companies, websites and travel companies. Then, scramble companies and their slogans, and see if the students can match them up.

Just do it. Nike

Because I'm worth it. L'Oréal

Have a break, have a ... Kit Kat

I'm lovin' it. McDonald's

Kills Germs Dead. Domestos

Connecting People. Nokia

Obey your thirst. Sprite

Betcha can't eat just one. Lay's Potato Chips

Hungry? Grab a ... Snickers

No more tears. Johnson's Baby

Think different! Apple

Always ... Coca Cola

Melts in your mouth, not in your hands. M&Ms

Impossible is nothing. Adidas

It Gives You Wiiings. Red BullIn tests, eight out of ten owners said their cats preferred it Whiskas.
Life's Good LG

Task 4

What helped you to guess right?

Why do slogans work?

A little analysis will be very instructive.

Elicit the features of a good slogan:

- They're short and extremely punchy.
- They're often funny, making a pun or play on words
- They sometimes include repetition of a phrase or rhythm (Harley)
- Partly as a result, they're memorable and likely to be repeated; here, you can reiterate the importance (and good value) of word-of-mouth advertising
- They are a statement of philosophy or beliefs (New York Times)
- They encourage (or simply instruct) the audience to do something (Nike, Sprite)

Now create your slogans for:

- 1) junk food restaurant
- 2) clothes shop
- 3) construction company
- 4) car company

6 WAYS TO EVALUATE INFORMATION

EVIDENCE

DO THE FACTS HOLD UP?

SOURCE

WHO MADE THIS, AND CAN I TRUST THEM?

- Trace who has touched the story.

   Authors

   Publishers

   Funders

   Aggregators

   Social media users

CONTEXT

WHAT'S THE BIG PICTURE?

Consider if this is the whole story and weigh other forces surreunding it.

- Current events

- Cultural trends

- Political goals

- Financial pressures

AUDIENCE

WHO IS THE INTENDED AUDIENCE?

Look for attempts to appear to specific groups in types of people. • Image choices • Presentation techniques • Language • Content

PURPOSE

WHY WAS THIS MADE?

EXECUTION

HOW IS THIS INFORMATION PRESENTED?

E.S.C.A.P.E. JUNK NEWS

Students learn a handy acronym to help them remember six key concepts for evaluating information, then test the concepts in teams.

TIME: 30-60 minutes

MATERIALS: E.S.C.A.P.E. Junk News poster (download), E.S.C.A.P.E.: Six Key Concepts worksheets (download), a news story for students to evaluate (for real examples, download the Teacher Resource – Evaluating Online News), internet access

PREPARE

- 1. Make copies of the E.S.C.A.P.E. Junk News poster (one per group of students) and the E.S.C.A.P.E.: Six Key Concepts worksheets. (The number of copies will vary, depending on whether you'd prefer students work in small groups or individually.)
- 2. Select a news story for students to apply the E.S.C.A.P.E. concepts to in their group activity. (Depending on your angle for this topic, you may want to choose a real news story, a fake/questionable story, or both.)
- 3. Review the E.S.C.A.P.E. poster so you are prepared to discuss the six key concepts.

DO

- 1. Ask students how they determine whether information they find online is trustworthy.
- 2. Introduce the E.S.C.A.P.E. acronym by writing the six key concepts on the board or projecting the poster. Explain that considering even one of these six concepts can help determine whether information is reliable.
- 3. Go through the six concepts and ask students to help you define each. Then reveal/distribute the poster, including the questions to ask and steps to take to investigate each concept.
- 4. Divide students into groups, one or two per key concept and distribute the Six Key Concepts worksheets and copies of/link to your selected news story. (Note: The concepts of audience, purpose and execution take less time to investigate, so you may want to consider pairing these with the first three concepts.) Have each group take 10-15 minutes to analyze the news story through the lens of their specific concept. This is a tight timeline, but push groups to work quickly and broadly rather than getting bogged down. (Alternatively: Have the students complete one or two concept worksheet(s) each as homework.)
- 5. Have groups/students share their findings. As a class, decide if the story is trustworthy or not.

DISCUSS

- 1. From one E.S.C.A.P.E. concept alone, could you make a determination about the reliability of this story? Why or why not?
- 2. Which of these concepts do you think is the most helpful in figuring out whether information is reliable? Why?
- 3. Which of these concepts do you think is the most difficult to understand or apply? Why?
- 4. Did you feel you had enough time to apply your concept to this story? In real life, how could you speed up the process of evaluating information that crosses your path?

Based on this quick evaluation of the execution, do you think this information is reliable? YES / NO Explain:

NEED HELP?

IS IT REAL?

Does the EVIDENCE hold up? Is the SOURCE legitimate? Run a search for the source name and key facts, people or images from the story to weed out the fakes.

IS IT WELL-MADE?

Are you impressed by the EXECUTION? A woll—made story starts with solid facts. It should be calm, clear and neat, not a train wreck of exaggerated emotion (like ALL CAPS WORDS!!!!) and sloppy mistakes.

IS IT NEWS OR OPINION?
What is the PURPOSE? News maint explains what is happening.
Opinion takes a stance to judge or make an argument about it.
First-person voice or words like "porspective" and "oditorial" are often tipoffs it is opinion.

IS IT SUPPORTED BY FACTS?
Is there good EVIDENCE? Look for statistics, studies, historical examples, primary sources, expert analysis or other signs that the writer has done their homework and can back up their argument.

IS IT BIASED?

Does the EVIDENCE show you the big picture? Biased stories may leave out key facts, so you only see one side of an issue. They may also exaggerate or downplay the importance of the story in the CONTEXT of other news.

IS THE BIAS OPEN OR SNEAKY? Does the EXECUTION clearly aim for a specific AUDIENCE? News with an open bias often uses partisan Jabels in its titles (like "Left-Wing News") or declares support for partisan missions (like "help Republicans get elected"). News with a sneaky bias pretends it isn't biased at all.

DOES IT
ENTERTAIN
AND/OR RAISE AWARENESS?
What is this story's PURPOSE?
Whigh whether the story was created for darker reasons, like causing destruction, scamming people for profit, or unfairly hurting someone or something.

This is real, solid information. It may not be all sunshing and rainlyway, and you may not like what it has to say, but it's basized up with fasts to provide plantly of food for thought. If decent't have the shock value of a crazy fake news story or the wired potential of an angry mant, but what it lacks in spearing districtions it makes up for with reliability and read-world implications.

MAYBE SHARE-WORTHY

It all depends on how you do it. These stories can be perfect for gwiling insight into how other people think or starting a predictive delais, but cell if you stay aware of the rishs. Lists a missate to increed the peosities consequences of your ardiess and choose your words wisely to stare close of toyld but of finane wars, Look for a way to stir the pot without making it bodl even.

Harred by hidden agendas and bad intentions, these stories can fuel destruction and chase. With no concern for consequences, they can spread deceit, fear and sometimes even danger. From accumuling the system for profit to tricking people into bad decisions to just plain making folits look stepid, there's semething tricky going on here.

IS THIS STORY SHARE-WORTHY?

Students use a flowchart to gauge the value of a news story and weigh what they should do with it.

TIME: 30-60 minutes

MATERIALS: "Is This Story Share-Worthy?" flowchart, either printed on large paper or displayed digitally (download); Is This Story Share-Worthy? worksheet (download); selections from Teacher Resource – Examples for Evaluating Online News (download); internet access

PREPARE

- 1. Review the "Is This Story Share-Worthy?" flowchart, including the supporting information for each question (located on the right hand side).
- 2. Select a variety of news stories for students to evaluate using the flowchart. You can use the examples in the teacher resource or find your own. Ideally, the stories should include a mix of fake news, poor quality news, opinion journalism, biased news and high quality stories. You will need at least one story per group.
- 3. Make copies of the Is This Story Share-Worthy? worksheet (one per group, or more if they will evaluate more than one story).

DO

- 1. Ask students how they receive and share information online. Do they share stories by text? Using social media? Which platforms?
- 2. Ask students how they decide whether a story is worth passing on.
- 3. Explain that the Constitution of Ukraine protects our freedom to seek out and share information, but not everything out there is good quality, or even real. Introduce the "Is This Story Share-Worthy?" graphic. Explain that this is a tool that can help them decide whether a story is worth spreading to other people. Go over the questions to make sure students have a general understanding of what they mean and how to navigate the flowchart.

- 4. Divide students into groups and give each group a news story (or stories), access to the "Is This Story Share-Worthy?" graphic and a copy of the "Is This Story Share-Worthy?" worksheet.
- 5. Have students use the graphic to fill out the worksheet and reach a conclusion for their assigned story. Then share and discuss their findings and experience.

DISCUSS

- 5. What type of impact do you think your assigned story would have if it was shared by many people?
- 6. How easy or difficult was it to use this flowchart? Which questions were the easiest to answer? Which questions were more difficult?
- 7. Do you agree with the conclusion that you reached using the flowchart? Explain.
- 8. It's not realistic to use this flowchart every time you are trying to decide what to do with a story in real life, so what are a few top tips that you can take from this graphic and apply quickly? (For example: Check a key fact if you're not sure if a story is real or fake.)

EXAMPLES FOR EVALUATING ONLINE NEWS: TEACHER RESOURCE

This collection of links includes fake, real (but surprising or hard to believe) and problematic (where truth and error or spin combine) news stories. Since bogus stories often disappear from the internet (and sometimes real stories, too), you'll also find an archived link for each story that will remain usable even if the original link breaks. (If you need or opt to use the archived URLs, be sure to use them for all examples so they don't give away what's real and what's not.)

Use these stories as conversation starters or in conjunction with our information evaluation tools:

- E.S.C.A.P.E. Junk News: A handy acronym to remember six ways to evaluate information
- Is This Story Share-Worthy? Flowchart: An infographic to guide students as they weigh the value of a story and what to do with it
- Believe It or Not? Putting the Consumer's Questions to Work: A set of questions to guide analysis of sources in research and beyond

IMPORTANT NOTE: Fake news sites often feature content that is inappropriate for a classroom environment. We have attempted to locate examples that will work for different ages based on the content in the story and on the surrounding page. However, ad content and other featured headlines may change over time.

DO NOT ASSUME THAT THESE EXAMPLES ARE CLASSROOM-READY. Please carefully review your selected examples in advance to ensure they are appropriate for your students. Or, for increased content control, use screengrabs to crop and adapt the content to meet your student's needs.
